ITI WELCOMES ENSIGN TELECOM REFORM BILL

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Information Technology Industry Council (ITI) President Rhett Dawson welcomed the comprehensive telecommunications reform bill introduced today by Sen. John Ensign (R-NV), describing the bill as a good starting point for the debate in Congress.

“Senator Ensign has long been at the forefront of high-tech policy, and this bill once again demonstrates his leadership,” Dawson said. “We share his goals of removing barriers to innovation, promoting competition, and sparking growth in the tech and services sector.”

Dawson added that, “as the telecom rewrite moves forward, we look forward to working with Chairman Stevens, Senator Ensign and the House and Senate to develop bipartisan legislation that promotes a vibrant tech and telecom sector.”

ABOUT ITI

The Information Technology Industry Council (ITI) is an elite group of 32 top high-tech companies and is widely recognized as the tech industry's most effective lobbying organization in Washington. ITI helps member companies achieve their policy objectives through building relationships with Members of Congress, Administration officials, and foreign governments; organizing industry-wide consensus on policy issues; and working to enact tech-friendly government policies.
